

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a semiconductor device manufacturing method, an ion current density distribution is measured in a plasma processing apparatus. It is then ascertained whether or not the measured distribution is in compliance with an ion current density distribution that becomes a criterion.